Patient was seen this evening.

He was very talkative, showing me folders he had compiled and paperwork

Showed me his little finger and said that when he was in hospital, that his small finger was damaged and currently cannot bend it.

Kempt, dressed appropriate for the weather in jeans and a tshirt.

Said that he has ran out of Lorazepam and would like it to be prescribed to him again, to which I explained will relay this back to the office.

He rated his mood at 6 out of 10, saying that he just wants his appeal to be sorted out at the Crown Court which should be towards the end of next week.

He was giving me compliments but was getting too familiar which was making me feel uncomfortable. I then said I had to go as I had my colleague waiting for me.

He reported no further concerns.
