

Continuation of Statement of

STEVE ELSMORZ

Police, rather than the Council. In most cases Police, would refer the caller to the out of hour's noise team at the relevant council. However, in the case of a Rave, Police would not continue to advise this every time as Police would investigate. Both Police and Council would both be well aware of the situation.

I am obviously aware through my dealings with this case that Simon CORDELL has said he is a member of the committee at Kempe Hall. I am aware that Kempe Hall has recently been taken back into the possession of Enfield Council due to the way that it was being run. Gang members were regularly attending the venue and causing issues. On 18th March 2015, officers conducted a search of the grounds of Kempe Hall and found was a firearm. These incidents amongst others have resulted in the hall being closed for the time being.

Since the interim Anti Social Behaviour Order has been made there has been a huge decrease in the number of Raves reported within the London Borough of Enfield. Simon CORDELL has seemed to keep a very low profile. I have checked Police systems and Simon CORDELL has hardly been sighted since the Interim Anti Social Behaviour Order was continued in March 2015.

Should others be involved in the illegal Rave scene within the Borough of Enfield then I confirm that Police will actively pursue them within the constraints of the law.
